V. OLD BUSINESS

A. Audit Commission Update

Matt West (CLAS, Chair): The Committee held a welcome dinner on Friday night for the incoming Honor Audit Commission members. The commission met for the first time on Saturday morning for three hours. They began to structure their commission and voiced the need for more representatives on the commission to expand the group's diversity within the University. They also divided their review into four main categories: the philosophical questions about the Honor System, sanctioning, the case process, and engagement at the University. They also appointed Phoebe Willis as the chair of the commission.

VI. NEW BUSINESS

A. School-Specific Outreach Planning—Introduction

Ariana Zetlin (EDUC) and Katharine Graham (ARCH): The Committee will break into groups based on their school in closed session. They will discuss their goals for the upcoming year to improve Honor's outreach in their respective communities and build on their discussions from the past few weeks.

VII. COMMUNITY INPUT

A presentation was given on faculty outreach by Meghan Wingert, a Support Officer who completed an Honor summer internship. Meghan explained her approach to the project and how the faculty view Honor at the university. She said that faculty members wanted more engagement from Committee members at their school and the Engineering School faculty specifically talked about teachers and TAs being lost when it came to Honor issues. She also advocated for new outreach materials for faculty members to explain certain parts of the Honor System. Overall, faculty who participated in the study thought a video of a Committee member talking about the Honor System would be great for them to watch and learn more about the System.
